ROOM SETUP

For In-Person Live Events

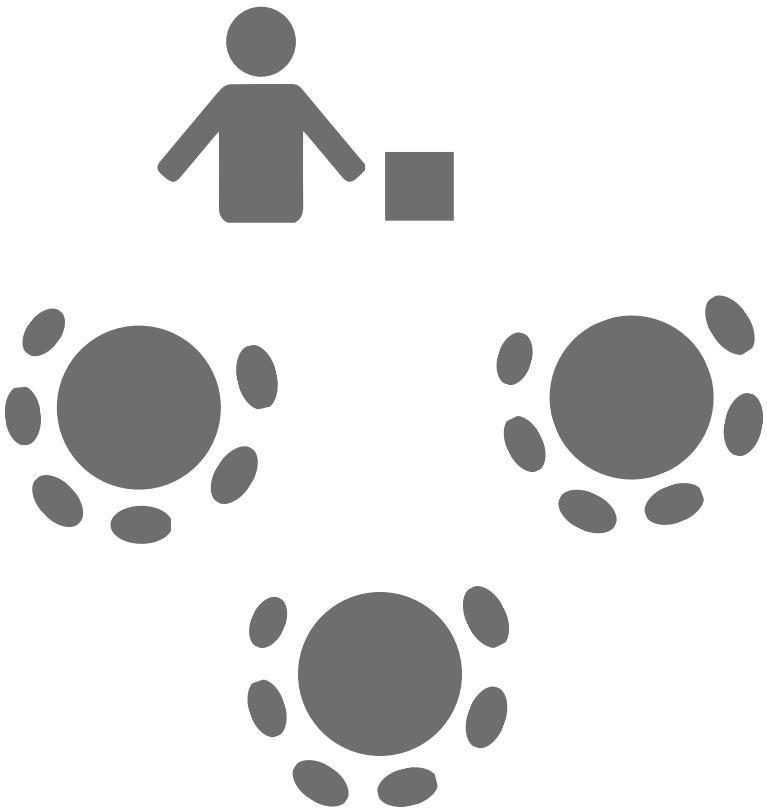

If you can have any configuration possible, we love having round tables (pods) with an even number of people. This makes it easy to work in partners or small groups. With that said, we're flexible enough to work with any tables.

It's also ideal to remove the chairs that would have their backs to the projection screen. It saves your participants' necks and makes the day more comfortable.

Our team won't stand behind a podium - they'll move around a lot. However, it is optimal to have a small table for their laptop and materials.

If your participants' materials are not placed at each seat in advance, please have a materials table available in the back of the room.

If you have group of >20 people, and cannot assemble the materials prior to the event, please make a plan with your facilitator so that the "passing out of talent cards" doesn't eat into your event time.

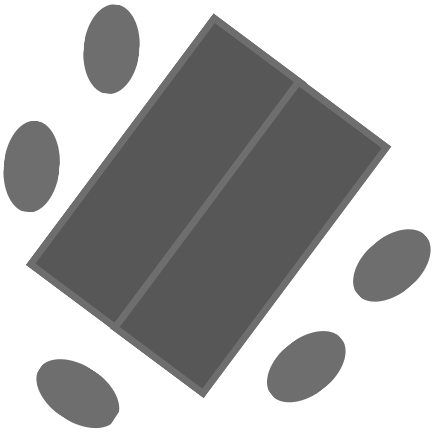

Materials

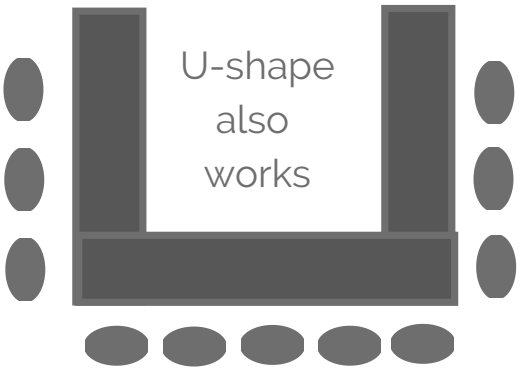

LEAD THROUGH STRENGTHS

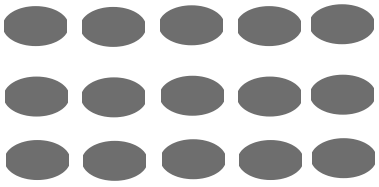

Questions?
events@leadthroughstrengths.com

ALTERNATE CONFIGURATIONS

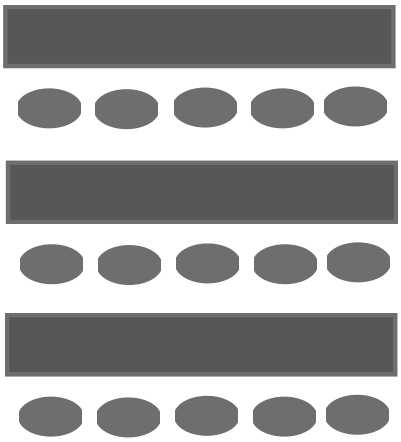

If you use conference tables, please angle the non-seated end toward the projector

Theatre seating is best saved for large audiences, usually >100 participants

Classroom seating is best saved for large audiences, usually >100 participants where you include workshop-style interactions

LEAD THROUGH STRENGTHS